MARCONI'S RINGING BELLS.

Story of One of the Inventor's Early Achievements.

An interesting story is told of Guglielmo Marconi when he was a student and in lodgings at Leghorn, writes the Rome correspondent of the London Advertiser. Residing in the same house were two gymnasium teachers, and one day the landlady had the house fitted up with electric bells and asked her lodgers if they were satisfied with the new arrangement. "That's all right," replied Marconi, "but it was not necessary for the electrician to disturb us all day by upsetting the house with his wires. Why, I'll engage to set a bell ringing in a few minutes without wires."

The gymnasium teachers were inclined to regard this as an empty boast. But Marconi held fast to his assertion. The teachers then challenged him to make a bell ring without the use of wires and said that if he could not do so they would proclaim him as a boaster. "Come to my room tomorrow morning," said Marconi, "and you will have proof of what I say." The teachers duly appeared. Marconi gave one a broomstick, to which he attached a bell, and asked him to place his "apparatus" in any corner he liked. To the other he gave a bell only, with instructions to put it down wherever he liked. He placed it upon the bed, then upon the table and finally upon the bedside.

Immediately the bell was laid down it began to ring. Both the teachers then ran round the room with their hands in the air, grasping for wires which they thought were invisible. They grew tired of searching for the wires, but they would not acknowledge themselves either conquered or convinced. Finally they left the room and ran up and down the street without saying a word. They held up their heads and shook themselves as though anxious to get rid of some evil magic. At last one of them spoke. "Did you see how he got the best of us?" he asked. "I should like to know where the wires were."

The Easter Automobile.
Easter cards with chicks and greetings, eggs with prayers for blessings and peaceful days, angels and flowers bringing joy and happiness are no longer in touch with the harmony of life unless they are deposited upon an automobile, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. Chicks seated upon gilt metal autos are the smartest Easter gifts going.

A Second London.
The chief desire of the municipality of Baro, in Chile, is to have their town known as a second London, and within the last decade much money has been spent to make it an exact replica of the British capital. The streets have been laid down and named after those in London.
